NEW WORLD BEIJING HOTEL'S 8 QI NIAN RESTAURANT IS RECOGNISED BY MICHELIN GUIDE BEIJING

On 16 November, the Michelin Guide Beijing 2021 was officially launched and New World Beijing Hotel's signature Chinese restaurant, 8 Qi Nian, was recognised with a "Michelin Plate" for its variety of impressive Chinese cuisines and authentic taste created by Chinese executive chef Eddy Wu. Chef Wu brings more than 30 years of Chinese kitchen leadership experience, passion for food and its flavour potential drives him to design ever-better culinary creations, uniting classical cooking methods with modern techniques.

The inaugural Michelin Guide Beijing features 100 establishments in the city. Michelin Guide inspectors found top-notch cooking techniques, varied and fresh ingredients, numerous types of culinary styles and a high level of professional service in the capital. Beijing is under the spotlight of the global gastronomic community with many world-famous chefs and the booming industry is a demonstration of an ancient yet vibrant city glittering with a combination of classic and modern.

Located on the hotel's first floor with a separate street-level entrance, the 164-seat 8 Qi Nian creates an intimate ambience for discerning diners. Tea connoisseurs are welcome to visit the tea library, where tea masters introduce more than 30 types of Chinese tea from Fu Jian, Yunnan, An Hui, Che Jiang and elsewhere around China. The sommelier advises guests on the best food and wine pairings, choosing from the restaurant's wide selection of red and white wines, champagne and spirits imported from all corners of the world.
